How to Get Started

The quickest way to get started is to create an account on the Login page or use an existing Ripple address if you have one. Those who have created addresses or wallets at other Ripple-based sites, such as RippleTrade will be able to use the exact same account and secret keys here because it's the same Ripple network behind the scenes.

Min XRP and Transaction Fee: After creating an account, the account requires a minimum amount of XRP to be activated. XRP is the native currency on the Ripple network with no issuer or backer. The starting minimum is 20 XRP, with each additional type of token you want to hold and each open order requiring an additional 5 XRP minimum. For example, if you want to trade both USD and EUR, you would need a minimum 30 XRP (20 base + 5 per symbol). If you then place an order, that increases by another 5 until the order is filled or cancelled. This is all done to prevent spam and other issues. In addition, while the technology is free, a small fraction of XRP is burned each time a transaction happens, so bad actors cannot flood the network with fake or meaningless orders. It is not an amount paid out to someone and is part of the Ripple protocol itself (see Ripple transaction fees).

Funding an Account: The easiest way to fund your account is to use a Ripple activation service like Bithomp, which allows you to buy XRP with traditional payment methods like PayPal to fund your newly created account. Beyond that, you would go to the issuers themselves like Bitstamp, who as described more below will exchange and redeem any token they back on the Ripple network for real-world currencies (including USD and EUR). Specifically, you would be looking for exchanges or firms that allow withdrawal or deposit via Ripple (which The World Exchange runs on); you'll know when you see a Ripple address for deposit or withdrawal of
